ARTS & CULTURE

ONE WOMAN'S TREASURE IS ANOTHER MAN'S CANVAS.

Brent Ray Fraser convinced a few friends to forfeit their prized Fendi bags and Armani suits for his exhibit, Prêt-A-Porter, opening Friday. Inspired by Andy Warhol's iconic treatment of the Campbell's Soup can, the Lower Mainland artist and Emily Carr grad created his pop art by painting on big name designer fashions and imprinting them on canvases.

With more than 140 pieces hung on garment racks and price tagged, the show looks more like a clothing store than your standard exhibition. Pieces range in price from $399 to $2,000, with one piece, "4 Louis Vuitton Purses" (pictured), auctioned off to benefit the Canadian Breast Cancer Foundation.

Now we can have our Chanel and mount it too.
